INT. ANGEL'S HOME - MIDNIGHT

Angel (21), wearing a "Birthday Girl" shirt, holding a half finished wine bottle and multiple gift bags, walks into her apartment. She heads up the stairs to her bedroom, stumbling over her own feet. She drops everything on the floor, grabs her LED room lights remote, and turns the color green on. Throwing the remote onto her bed, she rips her heels off.

(multiple phone notifications)

She picks up her phone and walks to her living room. Angel reaches her security alarm key pad in the hallway and types in a 4 digit code.

HER PHONE SCREEN IS SHOWN ON SCREEN AS SHE WALKS AND SWIPES (INSTAGRAM AND FACEBOOK 'BIRTHDAY WISHES' POSTS ARE SEEN)

Stumbling away, Angel half grins at her screen and plops down onto the couch. The green glow of her room is so bright, it's seen at all points of her home. Her room color changes to red.

PHONE SCREEN PROJECTION STOPS (THE LAST PHOTO SEEN IS OF TRIPLETS HOLDING FIREARMS AND THEIR NEW CARRYING LICENSES)

Angel quickly clicks her phone off and looks over her shoulder as the room color switches back to green. She shakes her head, trying to physically get the thought out of her head and laughs, weakly.

(a video from her phone blares)

PHONE PROJECTION STARTS AND ABRUPTLY DISAPPEARS AGAIN

Angel quickly turns down the volume and notices the clock on her living room wall ticking loudly. She grabs her head and winces, looking up at the clock. She gets up to turn it off, placing her phone on the arm of the couch. Simultaneously, her room color switches to orange. She whips her head around.

Formula by Labrinth begins playing

She walks into her room to see the LED room lights remote on her bed, under her kitten, Mia.

(she sighs with relief)

Angel takes one step towards her bed as the lights completely shut off. She is now frozen. Mia meows quietly.

(security alarm sounds for a moment, but a 4 digit code is

Angel looks at her cracked bathroom door and notices the light is on. She peaks her head from the bedroom doorway to look at the security pad in the living room hallway, a dark figure stands there very still. Mia meows again and the dark figure turns towards Angel's direction. Angel drops into a squat and shuffles out of the bedroom doorway.

In "Formula", the song picks up speed, skipping to the "Screws loose, Tell em" lyric

Angel dips behind the couch, squat walking to the hallway where the security pad is.

(Angel's phone rings)

At the same time, the dark figure makes its way to the end of the couch and is illuminated by Angel's phone. The figure's face is unidentifiable, but they have a short, blond bob, are wearing a black crewneck, black sweat pants and carrying a large gun. They click Angel's phone off. As she tries to hide, Angel drunkenly stumbles backwards. She covers her mouth to muffle her groaning as she falls.

(footsteps rush towards Angel)

Angel gets up and angles her body behind the hallway, still looking at the figure, starting to breathe harder.

(Angel's bedroom door creaks)

Angel's room is now dark blue. The glow illuminates the figure as they sharply turn the other direction and jog to Angel's room. Angel walks backwards down the hallway, still able to see the room color.

In "Formula", the lyric "I'm living for the thrill, formula" fades away to silence, besides the sound of wind blowing

The bedroom glow is now green. Angel backs into a bedroom door. She quickly opens the door, shutting it quietly, and looking down at the green glow on the floor. She turns around to see the bedroom window open, curtains flowing in the breeze. The glow switches to yellow on her feet

(two sets of footsteps come down the hallway)

Angel climbs out of the window, onto the balcony and looks down. She sees a figure, that's dressed identical to who she just saw in her house, staring up at her. The bedroom door swings open, Angel whips her head around and two identical women stare at her. They're both holding large guns and one has a backpack with Angel's laptop hanging out, while the other has a fist full of jewelry and couple gift bags. The glow behind the twins turns red and they charge at Angel.
